

Together Forever...

Is the NCC recommendation

The news we have been holding our breath about arrived today...

A few weeks ago we had a home study done, where the NCC (National Commission for Children's Rights) came to visit our home and the relationship that Flora and I hold. Today I received a ten page report with a proposed solution 'for the best interest of the child to advocate to FACS NSW (Australian authorities) to recognise our Rwandan adoption and proceed now with an International adoption.

This does not mean a Rwandan passport at this stage, but we are over the moon excited with this new progress and we continue to pray that the next step goes smoothly and one day we will travel together and arrive on our beloved Sydney shores.
